

Integra Reflects on the Past, Present and Future as the Company Celebrates 20 Years in Business

It all started in the small office in the home of President and CEO, Alan Wiessner back on March 7, 1988. 20 years later the celebration was held at that very same home.

Safety Harbor, FL (PRWeb) March 27, 2008 -- It all started in the small office in the home of President and CEO, Alan Wiessner back on March 7, 1988. 20 years later the celebration was held at that very same home. Integra employees and guests showed up in full force to help support and reflect a strong and memorable history, as well as, a promising future. The future of Integra pledges to be the most incredible period of growth and innovation yet.

In his motivational speech, Alan attributed the success of Integra to the efforts of its dedicated group of employees. "Something I have been thinking about for a while now is; that it's not about me now and it hasn't been for some time, it's about you. You are the future of Integra." Alan also went on to talk about how important Integra's loyal customers are to the company telling Integra employees that, if we "take care of our customers then they'll take care of us."

Over the next six months alone, Integra will release a totally new iDentifi.NET family of products. The new line up and enhanced offerings is expected to transform the way we store, manage and access information using *KWYKTM (Key What You Know) search method. (*Patent Pending)
